If you're strapped for time and unable to take a holiday during this busy period, why not spend the weekend at one of these lovely boutique hotels in Singapore?

Known for their quirky rooms and quaint furnishings, these hotels are bound to make you feel like you've been transported to an entirely different country, even when you're actually here. Remember to bring along your DBS Black Card when you make bookings though, as you stand to enjoy deals that will make your staycation sweeter.

Hôtel Vagabond

Booking a stay in Hôtel Vagabond feels a lot like spending the night in an art gallery. The 41-room hotel's seductive red-and-gold reception area features stunning art pieces that double as furniture, segueing into themed rooms designed by famed designer, Jacques Garcia. If the brass rhinoceros reception desk and giant art canvases in your room aren't Instagram-worthy, we don't know what is.

Hôtel Vagabond's extremely convenient location on Syed Alwi Road is just a dash from the Central Business District, giving patrons the option of exploring both the indie and contemporary aspects of Singapore. For those who fancy a stay-in, head down to the Vagabond Salon, a cocktail bar and restaurant where guests can enjoy charming, Old World bar service while enjoying their live music programme, launching mid-to-end October 2016.
